New Workforce Trends in Industry – 5 key takeaways from the seminar

(Need to be completed in at least 100 words in order to get credit)

The first key takeaway I got from the seminar is that when it comes to applying for jobs, it is important to think about some of your own guiding principles because they are what will drive the decision making process that you go through in evaluating the jobs you may want to apply for. You may also want to keep an idea of what is important to you when you go to work somewhere. The second takeaway is that it is important to have a personal story, mostly because you want to have a purpose and because you want to be remembered in a good way. The third is that when it comes to working, the hybrid approach is often best because one can do all the tasks they can complete quickly at home and do all the collaboration in the office for a strong balance in life. The fourth is that when you apply for a job, you may want to have some questions to understand that if the company you are applying for is the right company for you. The fifth and last takeaway I got is that it is important to diversify the people you meet and hang out with. This is important because it gives you the opportunity to challenge yourself and learn different things from many individuals.

How can this session be improved? (write in the space below)

I do not really have any suggestions for improvement this time around. This session was really good and had us actively participate in the presentation a bit.
